

Fieldwork

From ' Armchair Anthropology' to Conducting Fieldwork
Franz Boas
1883-84
research with the Inuit (formerly known as Eskimos) in the Canadian Arctic.
Bronislaw Malinowski
1915-18
fieldwork with Trobriand Islanders (off New Guinea)

Fieldwork

OBronislaw Malinowski

- Credited with introducing the ethnographic method to fieldwork
- Conducted fieldwork with the Trobriand Islanders (off New Guinea)
- 01915-18

Malinowski said the aim of anthropological research was to grasp the native's point of view (POV).

Malinowski

Imagine yourself suddenly set down surrounded by all your gear, alone on a tropical beach close to a native village, while the launch or dinghy which has brought you sails away out of sight. Imagine further that you are a beginner, without previous experience, with nothing to guide you and no one to help you. For the while man is temporarily absent, or else unable or unwilling to waste any of his time on you. This exactly describes my first initiation into field work on the south coast of New Guinea.

1922

Key Informant

OMember(s) of culture/society who works closely with anthropologist

- A cultural broker
- Often a marginal or liminal figure

May begin to see aspects of his/her own culture in a different way

Ethnographic Method= Participant Observation

- Develop rapport and gain acceptance
- OIntensive fieldwork (long stays/over time)
- Learn customs, behavior, norms, cultural rules Gather information through observation,
- Ogather information through observation, participation, interviews, life histories, etc.
- Collect concrete data over a wide range of facts Take field notes
- Record, chronicle or document the fieldwork experience

Comparative method

Oldentify fundamental similarities of cultural patterning as well as differences within and between societies

Anthropology can hold up a mirror to the Anthropologist' s own Society

Derek Freeman

01916-2001

 Margaret Mead and Samoa: The Making and Unmaking of an Anthropological Myth 1983

Possible Reasons for Different Findings

OThe passing of time...

Samoan culture has changed...

Mead was a young women interviewing young women about sexual practices

Freeman was an elderly man interviewing older men about sexual practices of the past

The Trashing of Margaret Mead: Anatomy of an Anthropological Controversy

Paul Shankman 2009

Rebuts that Mead was victim of a hoax when she conducted research in Samoa

The Trashing o

Temporal Dimensions of Conducting Fieldwork

Synchronic

A study completed during a single intensive fieldwork session.

Diachronic

The study of a people, place, or culture over time through very long-term or multiple fieldwork sessions or by using the earlier studies of others.

Changing ideas about the field

- Fieldwork occurs not just among non-Western societies
- Anthropologists also study their own society
 New social and cultural worlds, example the world of scientists, of business, of global migration, the circulation of media and popular culture, the effects of nation-state government policies and practices on society, etc.
 Multi-sited fieldwork

